Guide for writing inspection reports

1. Writing inspection reports

1.1   It is important that all reports produced by HM Inspectorate of Prisons are consistent in style and format. The following guidelines should ensure that every inspector is working to the same template and that the process of preparing each report for publication is as short as possible. Inspectors should be aware that the publication process is guided by protocols with inspected bodies. Timings must therefore be adhered to as closely as possible.

Initial contributions

1.2   Each inspector, including specialist inspectors such as those from Ofsted, has three working days following the completion of the inspection to write up their contributions in full, including any recommendations and good practice.[1] There is no need to format your contributions.

1.3   To keep reports clear and concise, we have produced a suggested word count and number of recommendations for each section, with the number of recommendations related to the healthy establishment assessment for each area (see Appendix II). These suggestions are intended as a guide and will be kept under review.

1.4   When writing up contributions, please avoid jargon, cliché and shorthand terms and be as clear as possible, citing evidence sources for your assertions (for example, survey data, observations, feedback from groups). Please remember to read through your contributions before passing them on to correct any errors. (An editorial guidelines document, including house style, a jargon-busting guide and a glossary of Inspectorate-specific terminology, is included at Appendix III).

1.5   You should then submit your contributions to the coordinating inspector.

1.6   All contributors should be aware that the team leader may ask them to provide evidence for their report conclusions some 10–12 working weeks after the inspection in order to respond to factual inaccuracies highlighted by HM Prison Service, the National Offender Management Service (NOMS), the Home Office, police forces, etc.

The coordinating inspector's role

1.7   Coordinating inspectors have one working day following the write-up stage to put the first draft of the report together. The coordinating inspector should:

- ensure that all contributions are combined into one document in the right order, including contributions from specialist inspectors[2]
- check that all sections contain a summary and findings, and that any recommendations/housekeeping points/good practice points are clearly identified and allocated (to governor, NOMS, etc)

[1] At this point it is helpful for the team leader to share the main summary, which they should write, with the inspectors, to ensure there is consistency between the summary and the main body of the report.

[2] Team coordinators can use report templates, available from the publications manager, to help them to organise the text, but they do not need to spend time formatting it; this will be completed by the editor.

- read through the sections to ensure there are no obvious mistakes, inconsistencies, repetition or missing information (including recommendations), and that the main summary does not contradict or omit anything of significance in the sections
- supply a full list of inspectors, researchers and specialist inspectors; the subject allocations, the completed fact page and population statistics, and the inspection dates
- supply a list of the previous recommendations and the progress against them (achieved, partially achieved, not achieved or no longer relevant)
- identify any repeated recommendations within this list and in the main body of the report, with text in the main report that justifies their inclusion.[3]

1.8   The coordinating inspector does not need to edit colleagues' contributions, but they should check the material before passing it on. Coordinators should not rewrite contributions from specialist colleagues, such as health inspectors, without checking with them first.

1.9   The coordinating inspector should then pass the contributions and additional information to the report editor. It is helpful if the coordinating inspector can also supply the feedback note from the formal Friday debrief (or a list of any notable findings from the inspection); this can be supplied either before or at the same time as the material for the report.

1.10   Inspectorate reports are edited by four freelance editors managed by an in-house publications manager. Teams A, N, O and J are currently allocated a dedicated freelance editor who, as far as possible, will be responsible for editing all of that team's reports. The immigration and police teams will be told which editor is allocated to their individual reports. If coordinating inspectors do not know who the allocated editor is for their inspection report, please contact the publications manager or assistant for direction.

1.11   The publications manager and publications assistant should be copied into all correspondence with editors for tracking purposes.

1.12   The editor has a four-day period to put together a first draft. As part of the editing process they will undertake a thorough search for contradictions and inconsistencies within and between the sections and the main summary. Any queries will be highlighted in the text and the first draft sent back to the team coordinator.

1.13   The team coordinator should:

- view queries from the editors constructively and answer them as far as they are able, following liaison with relevant colleagues where necessary
- indicate any queries that should be directed to the team leader
- not make any changes to the report without highlighting the additional information they have included/amended.

1.14   When amending the report, do NOT use track changes or the comments function. Use a different colour to highlight any further amendments.

1.15   The editor will then incorporate the changes and send the second draft to the team leader.

[3] Inspections that follow on from short follow-up inspections do not include progress on previous recommendations.

The team leader's role

1.16   The team leader is responsible for agreeing a final draft of the report to be passed to the Chief or Deputy Chief Inspector, which they believe meets the Inspectorate's required standards of accuracy, clarity, and independent judgement.

1.17   The team leader should read through the whole report and check the main summary (which they should have supplied to the coordinating inspector at the same time as the rest of the team's contributions) against the text, answer any remaining queries not dealt with by the coordinating inspector, and make any final amendments/suggestions for improvement before sending it back to the editor. The team leader should view queries from the editor constructively, and if they are unhappy with any section of the report they should provide clear revisions and amendments to the editor, so that these can be incorporated into the final draft. They should also advise the publications manager of any concerns about the quality of writing, so that the publications team can provide inspectors with appropriate support and/or training.

1.18   Once the report is returned, the editor will make the amendments, check the formatting, ensure all the recommendations are listed in the final chapter and cross-referenced to any repeats of previous recommendations, where appropriate, and submit it to the publications manager and assistant. The editor will copy all emails sent and received on the progress of the report to the publications manager and assistant to enable the centralised tracking sheet to be updated.

1.19   The publications manager or assistant will place the final report on the shared drive, together with the survey data and any further research evidence, and let the Chief or Deputy Chief Inspector know the report is ready for them to read. A cover note will include the names of the team leader, coordinating inspector, editor and contributors (i.e. who wrote each section). From that point, the Chief/Deputy Chief Inspector will liaise with the team leader over the content of the report, copying the publications manager and assistant into emails for tracking purposes. At the end of that process, the Chief/Deputy Chief Inspector sends a final version with any corrections/amendments to the publications manager and assistant, who will then input the final corrections into a report that is sent out for fact checks (see Appendix 1 for the report production process).

Peer reviews

1.20   Some reports (usually police, courts, short-term holding facility and escort reports) are read by another team leader, acting as a peer reviewer, rather than the Chief or Deputy Chief Inspector. The peer reviewer will be allocated by the Chief/Deputy Chief Inspector's office (based on their availability) and will be given the same timescales as the Chief/Deputy Chief to comment on the report. They will be expected to read the report and raise constructive queries in the same way as the Chief/Deputy Chief Inspector, and agree a final version with the team leader. The peer reviewer will then need to clearly mark up the amendments and send them to the publications manager and assistant. Team leaders should accept the peer review process as a constructive opportunity to improve the report, and respond appropriately.

Factual accuracy checks

1.21   Once reports have been through every internal stage of the production process, the inspected establishment and other relevant parties (such as HM Prison Service, NOMS, the Home Office, the Independent Monitoring Board, police forces, the Youth Justice Board, and partner inspectorates) have the opportunity to read the report and highlight any factual errors before it is published. Their responses will be sent within three weeks to the Chief/Deputy Chief Inspector's personal secretary, and forwarded to the relevant team leader who, after any necessary discussion with the relevant inspector, will supply the wording to use in response to the query and the precise wording of any amendment. The Chief/Deputy Chief Inspector will approve the response after discussion with the team leader if necessary. Final amendments will then be made and the Chief/Deputy Chief Inspector will sign off the report before it goes to print.

Photography

2.1 Many inspection reports now include an appendix of photographs to illustrate conditions that cannot be adequately described or to emphasise or provide evidence for a finding. Photographs to be used for publication should be selected with discretion, should not be extensive in number (ideally a maximum of four to six) as they add to the size of Word documents, prohibiting emailing them in some cases, and always be referred to in the text.

2.2 Pictures should not normally be taken of identifiable individuals, whether staff or prisoners/detainees. If, in exceptional circumstances, we consider it necessary to publish such pictures, formal written consent must be obtained.

2.3 If the team chooses to include photographs to illustrate inspection findings, these should be submitted to the report editor through the coordinating inspector, and copied to the publications assistant. The coordinating inspector should provide brief captions for the photographs (which should be in the file name to ease identification), and should ensure that they are referred to in the main report and cross-referenced to the photograph's file name to enable identification in the relevant appendix.

2.4 Please note that although such photographs are the copyright of the Inspectorate (as taken by individual inspectors in the course of their Inspectorate duties), they will not normally be supplied to third parties for their use.

2.5 The following protocols have been agreed with NOMS:

- Accuracy – Any photographs taken should be a true representation of the situation they are meant to highlight and not inadvertently misleading.
- Identity – Photographs will not be taken that might identify any individual prisoners or members of staff, without obtaining prior written consent from the individual concerned.

- Decency – Photographs will not be taken of anyone (staff or prisoner) in a vulnerable state where the individual may not be fully able to give their consent to being photographed.
- No photographs should be published of notorious offenders and no pictures that might cause undue upset to any victims should be published.
- Security – Photographs are not published showing keys, details of locking arrangements or any other establishment security measure that would not be obvious to prisoners.
- Photographs that are not published are destroyed or stored securely and should not be released under any Freedom of Information requests, using the appropriate Freedom of Information Act exemptions.
- Equipment taken into prisons must be kept to the minimum necessary and logged with the prison on entry and accounted for on departure. There must be a local agreement with the prison as to how equipment will be safeguarded and where it will be stored when not in use. The Inspectorate remains responsible for the safekeeping of equipment and any losses must be reported immediately to the prison as a security incident.
- Governors will be asked to comment on the suitability of pictures before they appear in the published report. NOMS will convey any objections to individual pictures being published as part of the factual accuracy checking process.

Tracking and timing

2.6 All prison inspection reports should be finalised within 18 weeks of the end of the inspection according to the protocol agreed with ministers (see Appendix I), and published shortly thereafter. This is a tight schedule for all involved. In order to meet this target, reports need to be tracked at each stage. Information should also be provided about the reason for any delays. There is a quarterly and end-of-year analysis of the percentage of reports we have managed to publish within the protocol.

2.7 Each stage of the report's progress is monitored and recorded on a tracking sheet for the business year, which is on the shared drive. The tracking sheet also records the number of days the report is early or late and number of days taken for each stage. Some reports are relatively trouble-free; others require more iteration between the coordinating inspector/team leader and editor, or the Chief/Deputy Chief Inspector and team leader. If we can keep track of the progress of all reports, there may be a degree of manoeuvrability to adapt the schedule to fit in with inspectors' commitments and those of the Chief/Deputy Chief Inspectors.

3. The format of inspection reports

General format

3.1   When writing contributions to a report, or compiling a report in your role as coordinating inspector, there is no need to add any formatting, line spacing, heading/sub-heading styles, bold, italics and so on to the original document, as all such formatting will be removed by the editor before they can apply the template. Each report should be submitted in a simple Word file(s). You do not need to number paragraphs, as automatic numbering will be added to the first draft. Please use single rather than double spaces between sentences and single line paragraph spacing. If preferred, you can use a report template to submit your contributions, but don't worry if the formatting becomes distorted as the editor will import all contributions into a fresh template. (Templates for all reports can be found on the G drive at: HMI_Prisons/003-Prison inspections/ 001-Inspection methodology/004-Report templates).

3.2   All contributions should be written in the past tense.

Expectations

3.3   Each section of the report should reflect whether the establishment is meeting the specific outcomes for prisoners/detainees as outlined in Expectations. Using Expectations to guide you as you write your contribution will ensure that it is as focused as possible. Each of the non-bold subject headings in the Expectations contents list should have its own summary paragraph, recommendations and housekeeping points/good practice as appropriate. The publications manager or editors will be happy to advise on structure.

The summary

3.4   It is the responsibility of the team leader to write a main summary (previously the healthy prison/establishment summary) outlining the main findings in the report under the four healthy establishment areas (see the table below for the healthy prison areas and the relevant Expectations for a list of subjects that are included under each area).

Subject areas encompassed within the four healthy prison areas

Healthy prison area	Subject area
Safety	Courts, escorts and transfers Early days in custody Bullying and violence reduction (including care of vulnerable prisoners) Self-harm and suicide prevention Safeguarding (protection of adults at risk) Security Incentives and earned privileges Discipline Substance misuse
Respect	Residential units

	Staff-prisoner relationships
	Equality and diversity
	Faith and religious activity
	Complaints
	Legal rights
	Health services
	Catering
	Purchases
Purposeful activity	Time out of cell
	Learning and skills and work activities
	Physical education and healthy living
Resettlement	Strategic management of resettlement
	Offender management and planning
	Reintegration planning

3.5   As a guide, the summary should be in the region of 3,000 to 3,500 words.

3.6   Each section in the summary should open with a two-paragraph summary. The first paragraph should provide a brief overview of the text that follows and conclude with the healthy establishment assessment for that area. The second paragraph should indicate the assessment for that area made at the previous inspection, with a report of the progress made against the previous recommendations and a tally of the numbers achieved, not achieved, partially achieved or no longer relevant. Where an inspection follows on from a short follow-up inspection, only the first paragraph is needed.

3.7   As elsewhere in the report, the summary paragraphs should reflect findings and should not be used to make recommendations. The summary should not contain information that is not otherwise in the main body of the report. It should, however, contain clear judgements about individual expectations, and descriptive adjectives should be used consistently throughout and across reports, as follows.

- The words 'good', 'reasonable', insufficient' or 'poor' should carry the same sense as the healthy prison assessment grade descriptors, whenever they are used.
- The number of deaths in custody or self-harm incidents (or other similar incidents) should never be described as 'reasonable'.
- When we use words like 'high' or low' we should be clear what we are comparing them with. Although the level may be the same as elsewhere, it could still be too high.
- If we say something is 'unacceptable' we should mean it has to stop, and we should include an appropriate recommendation.

Main recommendations

3.8   Main recommendations appear at the end of the summary and are compiled by the team leader. These recommendations are the key areas of change required for the establishment to improve its performance towards a healthy establishment, and should refer to points covered in the summary.

3.9   The team leader should consider the main areas of concern uncovered during the inspection and write a brief description (usually no more than a few sentences) of each concern, followed by each main recommendation. The 'concern' should make clear what needs to be fixed and when the recommendation is reviewed at following inspections, the focus should be on whether the concern has been resolved rather than just whether the action specified in the recommendation has been taken. Main recommendations usually follow single-issue concerns of high importance, strategic issues, or cross-cutting 'linked' concerns, such as poor record keeping in a number of areas.

3.10   Team leaders should aim to include no more than five main recommendations.

Recommendations

3.11   All recommendations are listed at the end of the relevant section of the report; they should not appear within the main text. The definition of a recommendation is that it is:

- something fundamental to the healthy establishment tests (and including anything that is important enough to be included in the report summary), or
- something that will require significant changes in culture or procedures, or new or redirected resources, and will therefore not be achievable immediately by the senior management team, or
- something of sufficient importance for us to seek evidence of implementation on a return visit.

3.12   Recommendations should all be outcome-focused, but some will be more prescriptive than others. For example, where our desired outcome is clear and there is only one way of achieving it, we should state what needs to be done to achieve it. If there is more than one way to achieve the desired outcome, just the outcome should be stated, so the establishment can decide how best to tackle the issue.

3.13   It is, however, important that each recommendation is in some way measurable to establish whether or not it has been achieved at the following inspection. Avoid recommendations that invite an establishment to 'review' or 'consider' something. So, for example:

Named officers should contribute actively to sentence planning reviews.
This is easily measurable as they either are or are not.

The catering department should consider whether menus meet foreign national detainees' needs.
This is not measurable because it would be impossible to measure whether a thought process had taken place and, even so, may still not result in the desired outcome.

Progress on previous recommendations

3.14   The majority of inspections follow up the recommendations of the previous full inspection to see if they have been achieved (where an inspection follows a short follow-up inspection, information on the progress of previous recommendations is not needed). Inspectors should note whether each original recommendation is:

- achieved
- not achieved
- partially achieved
- no longer relevant (because the context of the original recommendation has changed).

3.15   If an original recommendation, including a main recommendation, has not been achieved or, in some cases, has been only partially achieved, it can be repeated, as long as it is still relevant and important. In some cases, it might be suitable to link together two previous recommendations covering the same area and repeat them as one recommendation. Sometimes, because of changing circumstances, it might be desirable to repeat a previous recommendation as a housekeeping point. If the desired outcome is relevant, but could be better described, you should include a new recommendation rather than repeat the previous recommendation.

3.16 If a recommendation is to be repeated, the justification for this should be given in the appropriate section of the report. The repeated recommendation should then be listed under the 'recommendations' heading, with a reference to its previous report recommendation number at the end, using the format: (Repeated recommendation 0.00). Inspectors should not feel obliged to repeat recommendations if they no longer consider them necessary.

3.17 The team coordinator should produce a list of all previous recommendations under the appropriate healthy establishment section and insert the healthy establishment summary box from the previous inspection at the top of each section. The team coordinator should then list all the relevant recommendations from the previous report, starting with any main recommendations followed by normal recommendations, indicating the relevant paragraph number in the previous report (that is, from the body of the report), and whether each has been achieved, not achieved, partially achieved or no longer relevant, and also indicate which previous recommendations are to be repeated.

3.18 The team editor will then compile the information into 'Appendix II: Progress on recommendations from the last report'.

Ascription of recommendations

3.19 Recommendations should be ascribed to the relevant recipient where possible. If the recommendation concerns a local issue over which the governor has influence it should be ascribed to the governor/director of the establishment. If the recommendation concerns national issues, including some contracts, it should be directed to NOMs. We cannot make recommendations to organisations outside our remit, although we can call on establishments to enter into discussions with third parties to effect changes. The following should be used as a guide.

- Ministers – only if a recommendation involves a national issue requiring a political decision, such as legislative change or bid to the Treasury for large-scale national resources.
- Chief Executive of NOMS – only if the recommendation is about a national NOMS policy issue (e.g. indeterminate sentences/lifer policy and management) or a NOMS nationally managed service (e.g. escorts).
- Deputy Director of Custody – if the recommendation is about regional issues, such as local delivery partnerships or operational pressures; or about the high security estate, close supervision centre system or managing challenging behaviour strategy.
- Governor/director – if the recommendation relates to delivery of services to prisoners. This will be the focus of most recommendations.

3.20 Any recommendations without a clear ascription will automatically be listed for the governor/director's attention.

3.21 Recommendations made in reports on children and young people establishments on matters of national policy should be ascribed to the Youth Justice Board (where there are significant funding implications, the recommendation will also usually be made to the Youth Justice Board).

3.22 Recommendations made in immigration removal centre reports on matters of national policy or funding should be ascribed to the Home Office or relevant ministers (more usually the minister in relation to funding issues). Recommendations about inconsistencies or variations within the immigration removal estate should be directed to the Home Office. All other matters should be listed for the centre manager's attention.

3.23 Recommendations made in police custody suite reports should be ascribed to the relevant police force or Police and Crime Commissioner (outside the Metropolitan Police area) or to the Metropolitan Police service or relevant borough operational command unit within the Metropolitan Police area and to the Mayor's office.

Housekeeping points

3.24 All housekeeping points are listed at the end of the relevant section following any recommendations. The definition of a housekeeping point is that it is:

- achievable within a matter of days, or at most weeks, through the issue of instructions or changing routines with minimal resource implications
- something that addresses an issue that does not fundamentally undermine any of our healthy establishment tests (particularly safety and respect).

3.25 Housekeeping points should not be used as a substitute for recommendations to reduce the number of recommendations in a report.

Examples of good practice

3.26 Examples of good practice are listed at the end of the relevant section following any recommendations and housekeeping points.

3.27 Good practice is defined as:

- an example of impressive practice found during an inspection that not only meets or exceeds our expectations but could also assist other establishments of the same type to achieve positive outcomes.

3.28 The survey analyses, as well as being referred to in the text, will be included as appendices.

Appendix III: Editorial guidelines

House style guide

One of the most important aspects of creating a consistent look and feel to all the Inspectorate's publications is to ensure that they all follow the same style rules. The following guidelines relate specifically to inspection reports and detail the agreed style.

Please note that Inspectorate editors use the Concise Oxford English Dictionary (OED) 11th Edition (revised) 2009 as the agreed dictionary for reference, and you should consult this in case of query on the spelling and meaning of specific words. For grammatical and other style rules, we follow the publishing 'trade' text New Hart's Rules (Oxford University Press, 2005).

In common with many other organisations, the Inspectorate follows the style conventions of newspaper/magazine publishing, rather than book publishing (which means keeping capital letters to a minimum, using numerals for figures of 10 and above, etc). The Guardian provides a useful, and free, style guide - http://www.guardian.co.uk/styleguide - which can be consulted for further style tips.

Abbreviations and acronyms

Where possible, avoid abbreviations, except where they have come into common use, such as 'pm', 'am'. For other common abbreviations, reword the sentence:

e.g.   'such as', 'for example'
i.e.   'that is', 'in other words'
etc.   'and so on', 'including'

Do not use full points (full stops) for contractions (Dr, Mr, Mrs).

Acronyms fall into two main categories:

a) those that have come into common use and do not need to be spelled out, for example:
- BBC
- CNN
- AIDS
- HIV
- GP
- NHS

b) and those that should always be spelled out when they are first used.

An acronym should first appear in brackets after the full name of the body/process to which it refers. After that, it can be used on its own. For example:

> Around 800 security information reports (SIRs) had been submitted in the previous year, but the prison was investigating why the number of SIRs had fallen in the last quarter.

Remember, though, that the acronym need only be included in brackets if you are going to use it again soon afterwards. If not, there is no need to include it.

Equally important is to ensure that the correct full version of an acronym is used. If you are not sure, please check against our full glossary.

There are some acronyms that we never use:

- BME – always black and minority ethnic
- FNs – always foreign nationals
- VPs – always vulnerable prisoners
- CDs – always controlled drugs
- POs – which could be personal officers or principal officers

Ampersands (&)

These should be avoided in normal text unless they are part of a formal name, such as Cable & Wireless.

Apostrophes

It's means 'it is', it does not indicate possession. So 'The prison was refurbishing it's reception area' should be 'The prison was refurbishing its reception area'.

Apostrophes are not used simply to separate capital and lower case letters. So 'The ACCT's we saw…' should be 'The ACCTs we saw…' and 'CSRA's were always completed' should be 'CSRAs were always completed'.

Capitalisation

Avoid the overuse of capitals – they distract the reader's eye, can be the visual equivalent of 'shouting' and are mostly unnecessary. The basic rules to follow are:

Use a capital for:
- specific days, such as New Year's Day, Christmas Day and days of the week
- festivals, such as Easter
- names, such as of people, places, companies and organisations
- titles of books, publications, newspapers, films and so on

Don't use a capital for:
- jobs or roles, such as personal officer, governor, anti-bullying coordinator (but note, we do use caps for: Listener, Insider, Buddy, Befriender)
- 'sentence planning unit', 'self-harm and suicide prevention committee' and so on
- seasons, such as spring, summer
- compass points, such as east, north west (unless in a specific title, such as 'the Far East')
- areas of a prison, such as 'wing' or 'unit'

Titles of courses/programmes
Check with provider as these vary, for example: Challenge it, change it; Fathers Inside; Storybook Dads; Time for change.

Many people believe that a capital letter denotes importance, which can lead to sentences such as:

> The Anti-Bullying Coordinator was well supported by the Anti-Bullying Committee, liaised well with the Suicide and Self-Harm [note – always add 'prevention'] Committee and held regular meetings with Personal Officers.

The only capital needed here is the one at the beginning of the sentence. If in doubt, don't use a capital.

Children and young adults

We refer to those under the ages of 18 and 21 as follows:

Children – all those under 18 years old
Boys – all male children under 18 years old
Girls – all female children under 18 years old
Young adults – all young adults aged 18–21 or held in young adult establishments
Young men – young adult men aged 18–21
Young women – young adult women aged 18–21
Young people – children and young adults

Colons and semi-colons

Colons
Use colons between introduction and main theme, cause and effect, premise and conclusion. 'The reception was the best we had ever seen: it was large, clean and bright.'

Use them to introduce lists or examples. 'There were several nurse-led clinics: immunisation, HIV, asthma and diabetes.'

Semicolons
Semicolons are used to separate two or more parts of a sentence that are more or less equal in importance, are balanced, or are similar in grammatical construction: 'Some prisoners went out to work; others remained in workshops.'

They are used to break up complex lists where commas are also used, eg: 'Several people were involved in safety: the governor, who chaired committee meetings; the residential principal officer, who had just taken up post; and the anti-bullying coordinator, who was about to leave.'

Avoid semicolons in long complex sentences – create separate sentences where possible, as these are easier to follow.

Commas

Commas should never be used to join two main clauses. Instead use a conjunction, a semicolon or full point. So 'The prisoner was agitated, no one seemed to notice' needs the comma replaced with a semicolon, 'but' or a full point.

There must be a comma before and after a parenthetical clause. So 'When prisoners arrived, with or without their property, they were searched quickly'.

Dates

Dates should be written as follows: Monday 30 April 2013

Styles to avoid are:

- digital: 30.04.13
- any definition of numbers: 30th, 1st, 22nd and so on (except for centuries, e.g. '21st century')
- any abbreviations: '12

When referring to a decade, always use numbers rather than words (and avoid the common mistake of adding an apostrophe). For example:
- 1980s rather than 'the eighties' or 'the 1980's'
- 1920s rather than 'the twenties' or 'the 1920's'

When a single year, such as a financial year, comprises parts of two calendar years, an oblique stroke is used (2011/12). The en rule (a long hyphen, e.g. '–' rather than '-') indicates a period covering more than one year (2011–14). When talking of a stretch of time between two years say 'from 2004 to 2006' not 'from 2004–06'.

Definitions

Some acronyms and terminology have agreed definitions which should be included when they are used in inspections reports.

Forms

As with acronyms, references to specific forms, such as the ACCT, should always be explained in the first instance.

Hyphens

Many problems arise over inconsistent hyphenation of compound words. There are two basic points: compound words used as adjectives are hyphenated, but not if used as nouns. Thus: middle-class values, the middle classes. Hyphens should always be used when the meaning would otherwise be ambiguous: four-year-old children or four year-old children. The following are some examples of hyphen and non-hyphen use. If in doubt about whether or not to use a hyphen, consult the OED.

Hyphens
Anti-bullying
Anti-ligature knife (not 'ligature' knife)
De-escalation
Follow-up inspection
Lock-up
Looked-after children/care
Multi-agency
Multi-faith

Jargon/language

Take out jargon and cliché where at all possible. Always read from the viewpoint of someone completely new to prison/detention life, culture and phraseology. Would they know the meaning of every acronym and understand everything referred to? If not, change it.

See the HMIP Jargon-buster below for a guide to the clichés and jargon to avoid, and suggested alternative words and terms.

Money

When referring to currency, keep it simple:
• £3 (not £3.00)

Numbers

Numbers one to nine are always written out as words; numbers 10 onwards as figures, except when:
• followed by a decimal point (1.5)
• referring to page numbers or report sections (page 1, section 3)
• referring to money (£3)
• used in charts, graphs or tables
• used with the % symbol
• applied to education/qualification levels (NVQ level 2).

Do not start a sentence with a figure. This may involve turning the sentence around, for example. '77% of prisoners in our survey said they knew who their personal officer was' becomes 'In our survey, 77% of prisoners…etc'. If you must start with a figure, spell it out. If starting a sentence with a percentage figure, spell out 'per cent'.

When referring to large numbers, use a comma to indicate the thousands:
• 3,000 (not 3000)

- 455,000 (not 455000)
- 4.5 million (not 4,500,000)
- Four million (not 4,000,000)

See page 3.

Fractions
In normal text, fractions should be written out in words. For example:
- one-third
- three-quarters

Percentages
The Inspectorate uses the % symbol rather than writing it out in full unless it appears at the beginning of a sentence. Again, try not to start a sentence with a percentage. Turn it round, for example: 'Thirty-five per cent of prisoners said they felt safe' becomes 'When asked, 35% of prisoners felt safe.'

If you need to write it out in full use per cent not percent.

Time
Use the 12-hour clock rather than the 24-hour clock, with abbreviations for morning and afternoon given without a space, and full stops, not colons, to separate hour and minutes:
- 9am (not 09.00)
- 4.30pm (not 16.30)
- Noon (not 12.00 or 12pm)
- Midnight (not 24.00 or 12am)

Change vague references that will soon become misleading and out of date, such as 'recently' and 'in the last couple of years,' to 'since, [year/month]'.

Quotations

Use single quotation marks, with double quotation marks for quotes within quotes. For example:
The prisoner said: 'I heard my cellmate shout "Help" during the night'.

Full points should be used inside a quote only if the quote itself is a completed sentence. For example:
- The prisoner said that the course was 'really helpful'.
- The prisoner said: 'The course was really helpful.'
- Describing the course, the prisoner used the words 'really helpful'.

Spacing

Use single spacing between words and sentences, not double spacing.

Spelling

Follow the Oxford English Dictionary for spellings and hyphenation rules and use:
- '…ise' rather than '…ize'. For example: 'realise'; 'organisation'
- '…ed' rather than '…t'. For example: 'spelled'; 'burned'; 'learned'

Tense

The reports should be written in the past tense, not the present tense.
