Independent inspection of youth offending work

11 June 2012

EMBARGOED UNTIL 00:01 – WEDNESDAY, 13 JUNE 2012

PUBLICATION OF INSPECTION REPORT Inspection of Youth Offending work in Leicestershire & Rutland

The latest inspection report of Youth Offending work in England and Wales was published today.

Julie Fox, Assistant Chief Inspector, said:

“Our Core Case Inspection of youth offending work in Leicestershire & Rutland<sup>1</sup> was undertaken as part of our Inspection of Youth Offending programme. This inspection focuses exclusively on the work undertaken by Youth Offending Teams with children and young people who have already committed an offence.

“Its purpose is to assess if the work is of a sufficiently high standard to protect both the public from any harm resulting from the child or young person’s offending behaviour and the child or young person themselves, whether from their own behaviour or any other source.

“The inspection is based on a rigorous examination of a representative sample of cases supervised by the Youth Offending Service. Our findings are shown in the table below, outlined against those for Wales and the regions of England inspected so far. A more detailed analysis is provided in the main body of this report, and summarised in a table in Appendix 1.

<sup>1</sup> Leicestershire YOS provides youth justice services for both Leicestershire and Rutland. Although Rutland cases make up approximately 5% of the team’s total workload, our random sample did not include any of these cases. As a result, all references in this report to children’s social care services refer to Leicestershire only.

“We found an enthusiastic and committed group of staff and managers who were keen to deliver a high quality service. Some work is needed to improve the quality of initial assessments and subsequent planning for Risk of Harm to others and Safeguarding. Effective management oversight will be critical to this.

“Overall, we consider this an encouraging set of findings. We are confident that if the recommendations in this report are implemented the improvement required can be achieved and sustained.”
